Facilitator

Shamille Sarcauga (BFA) – is the Community Relations Coordinator at Lloydminster Sexual Assault Services. Shamille received her Bachelor of Fine Arts degree from the University of Saskatchewan in 2019. She started volunteering for LSAS in 2017 and was contracted to design resources for the centre. There, she learned about sexual violence awareness through creating and designing the resources. She found inspiration through the messages and beliefs that the centre has and how her work would be used to support survivors and raise awareness in the community.

Shamille joined the LSAS team in 2019 as a Project Facilitator, collaborating with the Public Education Coordinator in delivering group programs and working closely with students from kindergarten to Grade 12. She then transitioned to become the Community Relations Coordinator in 2019 and received training in various topics involving sexual violence to deliver and raise awareness to the public as well as how to respond and support the victims of sexual violence.

Shamille is still the Community Relations Coordinator at LSAS continuing to provide education and awareness to the members of her community, whether through the resources she designs, presenting in schools, offering workshops to service providers or caregivers. She believes that education and awareness can be taught at a very young age, but it is never too late to learn and raise awareness.
